

Queenstown Bank

7101 Main Street • P.O. Box 120
Queenstown, Maryland 21658

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Queenstown Bank employee, Tracy Whitby-Fairall, receives Maryland Bankers Association's Achievement Award

QUEENSTOWN, Md. (May 14, 2018) - The Maryland Bankers Association's (MBA) Council of Professional Women in Banking and Finance hosted its 6th Annual Conference on May 3rd at the University of Maryland University College Marriott & Conference Center in College Park, Maryland, which attracted close to 300 professional women in the banking and finance industry across the Mid-Atlantic Region.

The recipient of the Council's prestigious Achievement Award was Tracy Whitby-Fairall, Senior Vice President, Chief Operations Officer of Queenstown Bank of Maryland. Tracy was chosen in recognition of her outstanding achievements in the banking industry and service in the community. This award celebrates a woman who has excelled in her professional field in banking and finance and who has also shown an ability to use her skills outside of her own career through her service within the community.

Although Tracy has been in the banking financial industry for close to 30 years, she continues to stay involved and strives to continually learn about what's next for the financial industry. Tracy is a graduate of the Maryland Banking School and is currently participating in the MBA Emerging Leaders Program. In addition to her banking career, Tracy is also a lifetime member of the Linkwood-Salem Volunteer Fire Department. While she most recently served the organization as its President, she is currently the Treasurer. She is also a founding member of the North Dorchester Neighborhood Coalition, which serves to increase awareness through Dorchester County, MD concerning large scale solar development projects.

"Tracy is an exemplary leader within our organization" said, Kevin B. Cashen, the Bank's President and CEO. "We are very fortunate to have such a solid base of employees who not only take pride in their jobs, but also stay very involved in community activities and organizations."

Caption for photo: Tracy Whitby-Fairall accepting the Achievement Award with supporters Kevin B. Cashen, President and CEO of Queenstown Bank and Tommy Rhodes, former President and CEO of Queenstown Bank.

